Hongkons, June 21st, 1900.

THE fourth act of an exciting drama is well nigh completed, but before the curtain falls to the completion of the play, it is well to remember that much business remains to be got through. The capture of Johannesburg and occupation of Pretoria has changed the external aspect of the South African contest from a war, almost legitimate, to a guerilla strife; hereafter we cannot look with the same chivalrous eye on the struggles of a brave people for what they have called liberty—the right to oppress others more civilised than themselves. In the future any attempt at taking up arms will more and more partake of the ugly nature of rebellion, and that not only in the interests of humanity, but from those wider reasons of justice which have rendered the Government of the South African Republics a blot on the civilisation of the nineteenth century. One lesson of the war can, however, never be forgotten as long as the Empire lastsand that is the unerring instinct with which the various portions of the Empire, of their own motion, at the very beginning grasped the true significance of the issues at stake: and recognised that although England was in the forefront the war was in its essence an Imperial, and not a mere British contest; and that on its satisfactory settlement rested the wider question of the well-being of the nation in its whole expanse. It is the penalty of greatness that it has ever to prepared to resist encroachment wherever attempted from the pole to the the icy mountain chains of the the Soudan demand our anxious care. In no part of the world, however, are national interests becoming of more importance than along the coasts of the Pacific Ocean; and here, as in South Africa, these interests are not so much British as Imperial. Australia and New Zealand are essentially Pacific lands, but Canada herself has in British Columbia and Vancouver the strongest and most important outlook on the Ocean of any nation the United States scarcely excepted. Australasia and Canada balance one another in the northern and southern seas respectively, and to each of them, even more than Great Britain herself, is the maintainance of British power and British prestige a matter of literally vital necessity. Twenty years ago we were accustomed to look with complacence, if not with pride on the position we had attained to in the Pacific; and had our statesmen only been able sufficiently to comprehend the importance of our interests in these regions, we might have continued to occupy the same leading position in which we were found on the death of Lord PAL-MERSTON. Unfortunately a later generation of statesmen have never been able to grasp the importance of the situation, and have little by little permitted the hold we had on the Far East to be whittled away; we need not recapitulate the story, it has often been told, but of late it has assumed an importance greater than ever. It was no chance circumstance that led the war with the South African Republics to meet with no good will on the Continent of Europe ; it was indeed a challenge. The continental Powers had, in fact, been pursuing in South Africa the very same policy of encroachment that they have set in motion in Eastern Asia; fortunately they had stronger Englishmen to deal with, and in Sir Alfred MILNER and Mr. CHAMBERLAIN the nation found more energetic defenders of its pres-THORNE'S BLEND and WATSON'S tige than in our amiable and talented Prime Minister, who has made Eastern Asia his chiefest care. To the continental Powers the successful issue of the Boer war indicates that the period for further encroachment in Africa has been indefinitely postponed, and from its very beginning their eyes have been assiduously turned to China and the rest of the Far East. Unfortunately the strange womanlike vagaries of the usurping Empress at Peking afforded them just that stepping stone which they in their heart of hearts most desired. Russia and France, of course, in this forward policy were hand and glove; but Germany was by no means indisposed to take her share of what a woman's folly might throw in her way. But Russia had in view further aims in which she did not intend her good friend France to have a part. With true Oriental persistency Afghanistan has preserved her character, and in nothing is this more marked than in her inability to get rid of that curse of Asiatic states—the impossibility of establishing rules for the succession. More than most Asiatic kingdoms, Afghanistan has suffered from this weakness, and in the present instance, when the life of the Ameer is known to hang almost by a thread, there is especial danger. There is no international code of honour that would prevent a foreign Power taking advantage of such an opportunity to foster her own ends, and Russia has long been intriguing with one or otherof the claimants. Russia too, with a persistence that does her credit, has been pushing her railway system through the heart of Central Asia, and has now brought animously. her lines into the neighbourhood of Herat, the northern gatesway of Afghanistan and, it is evident, intends to make use of her place of vantage to push her ends in India. It is quite possible that Russia has no ulterior end in view in India, but she has so far committed herself to a policy o absorbtion that it is more difficult for her to stand still than to advance; and recently, having extended her frontiers to China and Corea, she has been showing unwonted activity at Peking and Seoul. The situation is one that threatens a distinct danger to the Empire at large; it is not that Russia herself is more to be dreaded than at any previous period; but the danger is, that taking advantage of a temporary preoccupation she may contrive to create a diversion when the Empire is seriously engaged; and this on account of the retrogressive commercial policy of Russia is a matter of serious consideration, not for Great Britain and her colonies only, but for the whole of Canada and the United States deeply concerned in this new possibility. is unfortunately the case that, owing to the recent laisser faire policy of the British Government, British subjects in China have been compelled to look on while the rest of the world were advancing everywhere along the line. In every department the English neighbour, who has a sympathetic government at his back which does not fail to see that the road of advance for him is kept open. It is notorious that, even in the ordinary occurrences of the day, the English man is at a disadvantage; and this disadvantage is emphasied when it comes to larger should he taken.

Yukon equally with the burning uplands of | issues. Mr. Sr. John Brodnick stated a short time since in the House of Commons. that Englishmen had not taken up the concessions which they had acquired, an attempted to thrown on the shoulders of private individuals, the blume really attacking to the Government. This attack, as unjust as it was ungenerous, has apparently had the opposite effect from that intended for it had evidently had a deterrent result. The Peking Syndicate, as an instance in point, found the Englsh public unwilling t subscribe to its last issue; which was in consequence thrown back on the hands of the undertakers. It is not pretended that the individual Englishman has retrogressed; indeed the events of the Boer war prove him to be as ready as ever to come forward when he finds his Government in earnest. Whence then his apathy? We have no reason to disbelieve that it is the immediate result of the weak and listless policy that Lord Salisbury has throughout pursued in China. When then the pacification of South Africa shall have been completed, some thousands of Australian and Canadian troops, not to speak of the home forces, will be set at liberty. These great Colonies are beginning to see how grievously their interests in th Great Ocean are being frittered away. is impossible but that they should look to to which he was so recently nominated by the some profitable return for the services they have so freely rendered to the Empire.

> inst there occurred six fresh cases of plague and seven deaths.

> Yesterday being the anniversary of the occasion of Her Majesty Queen Victoria a royal salute was fired at noon by the war vessels in the harbour. British ships were dressed to cale brate the occasion.

> Sir Henry Blake was to inspect the Sugumo priser in Tokyo on the afternoon of the 13th inst. On the following day Sir Henry and Lady Blake were to pay a visit to the Court, accompanied by the British Charge d'Affairs and the nide-de-camp to the Governor and to be received in audience by the Emperor and Empress of Japan.

> Lam Yan, of Wanchai, who was arrested on a charge of being in possession of insignia and writings to a Triad Society, was again placed in the Dock yesterday, and remainded until the writings could be translated. Sergeant Sullivan, suspecting from information he had received that the man was a member of an illegal society arrested him, and on searching him found the insignia and writings in his possession.

> The other day four men were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment and 20 strokes with the birch rod for committing a couple of robberies at Ma Tau Wai. The prisoners were again placed in the Dock at the Supreme Court resterday morning, when His Honour T. Sercombe Smith said that the punishment of whipping would not be inflicted. The men were found guilty of larceny, and not armed robbery.

A third storey had been added to the building. The wall does not seem to have been strong enough to hold it, for it gave way and the men in question were buried, one of them however managing to extricate himself. An apprentice joiner said that on the 20th May he was working on the top floor of a house between Si Wo Lone and Des Voux Road. West Point, with some other workmen, when the building gave way. One of the joiners was killed and witness sustained various injuries which necessitated his being sont to the Hospital. The building had had another storey added to it.-Mr. Xavier, architect and surveyor, submitted a report as to the cause of the accident. He said that the accident consisted in the giving way of the party wall between two houses. He was of opinion that this wall collapsed on account of the absence of cross walls. The buttresses and poles were not strong enough. The building was kept from collapsing before the jeists.—His Worship: I suppose if there had been a European architect the thing would never have happened?-Mr. Xavier: No.-His Worship: Then the sooner it is the law! that buildings should be superintended a European architect the better. He would read Mr. Xavier's report and let him know whether he thought any further action

The five suspected cases of plague reported at Port Said were on the 2nd ult officially declared to be plague. Three of those attacked were Greeks and two natives. Two of the Greeks died. Three cases are also reported from Sunkin.

A Seoul desputch to the Osaka Asahi states that a telegram was received by the Corean Government on the 10th inst., from the Corear Minister at Tokyo, announcing that he had informed Prince Li Shun yo that he was charged with treason, and that the Prince replied that he would proceed home to answer the charge This is causing some anxiety among the followers of the late Tai-won-Kun, it is said.

Another lamentable shooting accident in the narbour was reported at the Control Police Station yesterday morning. It occurred on the No. 2 police launch early in the morning. European police constable had taken up a Winchester rifle which he thought was not loaded. While examining it the piece went off. The builet struck a board and then caught a Chinaman in the abdomen, inflicting a serious wound The man was taken to the Hospital, where he lies in a precarious condition.

Singapore is likely to furnish an example o short tenure of seat on the Legislative. It appears that Mr. W. H. Frizell will find it necessaay to retire from the sent in Legislative Council Singapore Chamber of Commerce, and in which he was confirmed by the Secretary of State. It is understood that the Chartered Bank thinks In the 24 hours preceding noon of the 20th that the seat in the Straits Council cells for too much attention to be occupied by a Bank manager. This rub does not appear to apply in Hengkong.

> The capture of eleven of the men who raided three fishing junks in Kowloon Bay by Inspector Gauld and several other members of the cleated, and as treasurer Mr. J. Blüssels, the Water Police was a smart piece of work, and well worthy of being commented upon. Accordingly after sentencing the prisoners to seven years penal servitude, the Chief Justice called Inspector Gauld forward and said he though the community were very much indebted to the Inspector for the energy and diligence shown by him and the police employed under him in the capture of this gang of pirates. If all the police were to work as they had done there would be less of this sort of thing.

The Enrasian boy named John Whiley was again brought before Mr. Hazeland at the Magistracy yesterday. He had been arrested for obtaining money by false pretences. Hi Worship said he did not propose to send him to gael, because he thought that if he did so it would be his ruin. Unfortunately at present there was no reformatory. Hitherto he had led an honourable and upright life, in proof of which he stated that he held office in connection with several societies. -His Honoar said he was very sorry to see a man of his position charged with such an offence. The offence was a very serious one, but after taking all the pircumstances into consideration he had decided to deal leniently with him. He would be sertenced to two months hard labour.

In view of the forthcoming bi-centenary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, it is pointed out in St. John's Cathedral Notes for June that, though the S.P.G. is not formally represented in Hongkong. in the Far East, in the Singapore, North China. South Tokyo (Japan) and Corea Dioceses, a large number of members of the Society, both 1883, to that portion of the Kowloon Peninsula clerical and lay, are actively at work both amongst Europeuns and amongst the heathen. It is a distinctive feature of this Society that its work is not confined to the Evangelisation of the heathen. When in 1701 it was incorporated by Royal Charter its object was specially stated as "the propagation of the Gospel in plantations and Colonies." In 1842, directly after Hongkong had been ceded to the British, the S.P.G. appealed for funds for planting a branch of the English Church in the newly acquired. settlement. Over £1,800 was raised and the interest of this was, in 1845, placed at the disposal of the Bishop of London towards the maintenance of one or more chaplains in Hongkong. During the next four years the Society assisted in raising an endowment for a Bishoprio there. In the meantime the Church Missionary Society had sent out a missionary clergyman to China (the Rev. George Smith), and in 1849 he became the first Bishop of Victoria. then the work of the Anglican Church in South China has been in the hands of the C.M.S., and Hongkong has had no official connection with the Society which is about to enter upon its 200th year of work. This should not be excuse for Hongkong forgetting the connection.

THE CRISIS IN CHINA.

NEWS VIA JAPAN.

MURDER OF A JAPANESE OFFICIAL. The most important news contained in the despatches to the Japanese vernacular papers is the murder of an official in the Japanese Legation just outside Peking. The fullest account of the affair is in a Tientsin despatch to the Onaka Acahi. From this it appears that the unfortunate man, hy name Sugiyama Hin, was instructed to most the Japanese marines on their entry into Peking. He set out, apparthe City walls, and when he reached the Winting Gate-one of the seven gates of Pekinghe was attacked by some horsenien under General Tong Fushao and murdered. It is reon receiving the news made a representation to the Tsungli Yamen, who sent a guard to the scene of the murder. Whether any further action was taken by the Japanese Minister does not appear. With regard to the conflict between the marines and the Chinese, says the Kobe Chronicle, some additional particulars are given. One very important rumour is that there seems some probability that the Chinese who came into conflict troops under General Tong Fushao. engagement took place in the evening at 6 p.m., and besides the fifty Chinese killed a number were wounded and eight horses were killed. Four of the prisoners taken in the engagement had arrived in Tientsin, ITEMS FROM THE NATIVE PAPERS. A Peking despatch, dated the 8th inst. to the Jiji, says :- "It is reported that, while estensibly co-operating with the other Powers, the Russian Minister has secretly communicated with the Emperor of China." A Tokyo desputch states that the Japanese Government has decided to despatch three more warships to North China, and orders have been given to the gunboats Chinpen, Chinchu and Chinhoku accordingly. They were expected to leave on the night of the 11th or the following morning. A Tientsin despatch to the Ocaka Acabi, dated the 11th just, states that the Japanese cruiser Suma and the torpedo-boat destroyer Kagero have arrived. The torpedo-heat destroyer will be engaged in keeping open communications between Takn and Tongku. Sixty-seven men have been landed from the cruiser Suma. A Shanghai telegram of the 12th inst. to the same journal announces that a part of the American bluejackets sent to Peking came back to Tientsin and returned again to Pelsing with provisions it appears to be the chief mission of French for five days. It is reported that Chefoo has has not been confirmed.

From Osaka comes the news that on the 15th inst. the Osaka Shosen Kalsha was instructed by the Minister for the Navy to report without delay on the number, speed and other partienlars of the Company's fleet, the number of days taken for voyages to Koren and Chine, and the ports of call in those countries. ### FRENCH COLONIES.

In recent issue. Fielden's Magazine gives an interesting summary of French Colonial trade during the past ten years. Our contemporary points out that the Colonial possessions o France are costing the mother-country an average amount of £3,200,000 a year, the total expenditure for their maintenances, during the past ten years, being no less than £32,883,663. This expenditure is almost wholly concerned with development work, but is consumed, for the most part, by the multitude of officials which colonies to support. The exports of France to hercolonies amount only to an average of £4,250,000, been attacked by the insurgents; but the report whilst, as pointed out, it costs the country £3.200,000 to maintain these colonies as a market. A report on the 1866 Budget for the Chamber of Deputies emphasises this fact; to quote verbatim "A market worth 95,000,000 francs, costs us 80,000,000 a year." It will thus be seen that the economic situation of France is a constant drain upon the national purse; and that as this outlay is almost entirely absorbed by administrative charges, it is unproductive as being without a prospect of bearing any return. The magnificent position which Great Britain has attained through her colonies, Then when the Boers came up and the fears pursues Fielden's Magazine, is mainly accountable for the frantic exertions of her rivals Tokyo, stating that the reserve men of the 5th to occupy alien territories; and in this France taking cover, and tried with twenty or thirty of (Hiroshima) and 18th (Kokura) Army Divisions especially has been extraordinarily aggressive. his men to bring an effective fire to bear on Notwithstanding, our neighbours, in their violent colonial expansion, appear to have left out of mind one primary essential a successful colony-viz. the possession colonists wherewith to colonise it. Throughout the whole tale of French possessions the complaint is uniform; stagnation and decay through lack of immigration. True it is that a large proportion of French oversea possessions are climatically unfitted for permanent European settlement. But France holds colonies whose climate and natural resources are in every way adapted to her home population. In New Caledonia, for instance, the land is fertile and rich in the most valuable mineral deposits. Yet though the island was acquired by the French nearly fifty years ago its means of interior communication are still for the most part in the same primitive condition in which they were found, and the copper, cobalt and nickel mines are being worked by five English companies. "France," winds up the writer, "is a sterile nation; and with declining population can only hope to colonies in the sense that Spain colonised Mexico and Peru. They may exhaust the riches of other soils for their own benefit, but the hope our neighbours seem to posses of building up a colonial trade with a Greater France in the sense of 'Greater Britain' will never be

AMONG THE JUNGLE MEN IN LOWER SIAM.

The party of University men to whom, upwards of a year ago. Cambridge entrusted the commission of exploring the Malay provinces of Lower Siam have recently returned to England The chief interest of the region visited lies in the fact that the greater part of it has been hitherto almost entirely unexplored. Many very interesting incidents occurred this port on the 19th inst. and is expected to | during the progress of the expedition, said Mr. W. W. Skeat, of Cambridge, to a representative The N. Y. R. steamer Inaba Maru (Europe of the Daily Mail. At Lampam two panther cubs, which had been picked out of their nest nally, by a Siamese woman, who asserted that > Travelling now on elephants and now by means of boats and rafts, the expedition reached the village of Aring, in the far interior of the peninsula, whence Mr. Skeat, accompanied by six Malays, went on a scouting expedition to explore the routes to the Tahan Mountain, which is about 10,000 ft. high, and got sight of an unrecorded peak called by the Malays "Coffin Mountain." Several exhibitions of devil dancing come under the observation of the party, as well as fights between trained pairs of bulls and rams, etc. Many jungle people were met and examined.

These, Mr. Skent explained, were probably, from an ethnological point of riew, the most interesting race of people in the peninsula. Those encountered appeared to be all of the negrito type, with very black skins and carry hair. They use the blow-gun with darks poisoned by the sap of the well-known upas tree, and by means of these killed birds and monkeys and small game generally, which they eat in a more or less half-cooked state. They are one of the most primitive races in the world, and live like wild beasts in the jungle. The results of the expedition have given entire tatis attion.

GENERAL IAN HAMILTON.

To every man who knows the records of the British Army, the fact that Major-General Ian Hamilton is bearing the brunt of the present fighting will give a sense of supreme confidence. Ian Standish Monteith Hamilton-let the name be given in full, for every word of it tells of a noble family history—is a soldier's son; He was born in a fortress forty-seven years ago. and barrack-yard and troop-ship, shifting regiments and threats of war, were among his carliest childhood's' recollections.

Educated at Wellington College, he obtained his commission in the old 12th Foot, but soon was transferred to the Gordon Highlanders. There was much in the regiment to attract a "lad o' pairts," and Lieutenant Hamilton had not long to wait for his first taste of battle. In 1879 the Gordons were ordered to take part in the Afghan War. Hamilton was twice mentioned in the despatches for his conspicuous services, and came away with a medal and two

From the long struggle in the Central Asian hills to the Boer campaign in South Africa must at first have seemed a holiday to the Gordons. Everyone has heard the tale of the great night march of 600 men to the very summit of the hill of Majuba. In that march Ian Hamilton took his share with three companies of his regiment. The Highlanders had newly arrived. and had been hurried up to the front. They were keen to be the first in a great victory.

Inn Hamilton was one of the earliest to scent danger. He was posted with his men on the nortern face of the hill, and it is said that he went to Colley and implored him to surround the hill with outposts. But this was not done. proved too well founded, he asked for leave to charge, but leave was withheld. He saw Boers them. In the hour of panic he and his lads bravely and stubbornly held their ground. He was severely wounded and narrowly establish

That battle had one great effect on the young officer's mind. It made him a fenanc on one question. He saw that our soldiers were defeated because they could not shoot, and he resolved to devote himself to improving the shooting of the Army. He has well done this. In 1893 he was appointed commandant of the School of Musketry at Hythe. He has introduced many valuable improvements into the drill and methods of instruction in both India

In 1882 Captain Hamilton went back to India, and became side-de-camp to General Roberts. He found his chief as keen on the great shooting question as he was. General Roberts encouraged rifle meetings and took to rifle shooting himself, as did Captain Hamilton and other officers of the personal stail. The captain took part in the Nile Expedition of 1884-5, where he again earned the coveted mention in the despatches and the brevet rank of major. In the Burmese Expedition of 1886his deeds once more recured him special mention, together with the brevet rank of lieutenant-colonel. Then at the special request of General Roberts he took over the charge of musketry training for the whole Indian army. In the Chitral and Tirah expeditions Colonel Hamilton took conspicuous parts. In both he was mentioned in the despatches, and he was decorated for his work in Burms and Chitral. He received the distinguished Service Order in 1891, and was made Commander of the Bath after Chitral. Such a list of honours falls to few men. In the South African campaign he has siready proved that he retains to the full his old qualities of caution, coolness, daring. At Nicholson's Nek, for instance, his column when not wanted was co-skilfully placed under shelter that the Boers never discovered its whereabouts. He commanded the infantry brigade at Elands Laagte, and was there recommended for the Victoria Cross for bravery on the field. And in the dark days that followed in Notal General Hamilton showed the way to stern endurance.

We were advancing to a smart double, and were within twenty yards when I saw hundreds of Boers lying in cover. A Remington guide galioped out and said : The whole of our convoy is in the hands of the Boers. will be a hand-to-hand light now. Several Boers came out of the river and told us to put down our arms (as if we had surrendered!) and to go down to the wagons with the other prisoners. We were so taken by surprise, we could hardly realize the trap we were in. Our colonelgave the word, Sections about, gallop! Then the Boers opened firent twenty yards. After that, of course, it was nothing but a mad gallop for life. Wherever we rode it was all the same. 1 told my men to follow me, and managed to get the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given.

To illustrate the vest scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains, about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of differ nt words which | Chemulpo have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the antives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion.

CARTOONISTS AND THE WAR. Much has been written of late concerning the been ventured as to the cause of this spitaful outbreak of extraordinary hate on the part of Continental people. It cannot be attributed to. any one cause exclusively, but is to be regarded us the outcome of various causes, and the cumulative result of tangible and intangible influences. However this may be, the fact itself is incontrovertible that probably never before has England been the object of such general dislike as at the present time. The venomous feelings of peoples of various nationalities are finding vent in many ways. It is particularly galling to learn that English tourists meet with most discourteens treatment on the Continent at the present time, and more than one unseemly personal quarrel has occurred in hotels hitherto patronized by the English. It has come to a pretty pass surely when hotel-keepers, who have grown rich on the lavish expenditure of Milord Aughis and his frihe, should request English guests to leave their hotels, so that visitors of other nationalities might be propitiated and their patronage retained. The Continental Press generally is responsible for this state of things, It has poured out the vials of its wrath without cessation upon Great Britain, and aroused a antagonistic spirit against the British. Quite a leading and highly effective part has been played in this campaign of malice and hate by the caricaturist. A perusal of some of the comic papers of the Continent is a painful experience. Nothing is too vile to say and suggest concerning England. Work by week the comic papers pour forth their pictorial venom, and many of them unblushingly publish sketches of a most obscene and filthy character. English royalty. not to speak of the nobility and the army, is held up to contempt and ridicule. The most unjust insignations and charges of all kinds are freely made, and art is prostituted at the shrine of malice in a truly disgusting manner. Here and there are exceptions. A few papers publish wer cartoons of a somewhat coarsely humorens but clean and inoffensive type, with which the most fastidious can hardly find fault. But the vast majority are absolutely unscrupulous and devoid of all just consideration. Throwing the reins on the neck of foul imagination, and breathing out hate and ill-will they recklessly launch their missiles without the least pretentions to modesty or truth. The gratuitously mendacious statements of the French and German Press are so manifestly inspired by doep, and to us, perfectly inexpli the outcome of it all. Of course sensible English people will ignore these offensive outbursts, but they leave a sting, which it will not be easy to extract. When the boys in the gutter threw mud, the dignified course for the coachman is to drive on; but the sting remains in the coachman's mind, in spite of all the dignity he may summen to his aid. American cartoonists have not been idle or backward by any means. Their own war was a perfect godsend to them, and brought several extremely clever caricaturists to the front. They unsparingly caricatured the highest and navy officials, and ridiculed the President and his Cabinet with the utmost freedom American caricaturists are among the most humorous of modern times, and it can be truthfully said that, in general, their art is of a plean. wholesome kind a kind that often stings, it is true, but does not permanently embitter. Some of the skits, suggested by the Boer War, have been full of quaint humour. A few may be noted at random. A Christmas issue represents John Bull in his night clothes, anxiously lunging up his stockings and holding in his hand a letter, which reads thus: "Dear Santa Claus, bring me a victory Christmas John." That was at the time when things in South Africa were going badly with the British, and the outlook was especially gloomy. The victory did not come as a Christmas gift. But John Bull lore his disappointment bravely, possessed. his soul in patience and held his peace, to the wonder and admiration of the civilised world. His reward came in due season, and be enjoyed it to the full. Another cartoon pourtrays the feeling awakened in the treast of Uncle Sam by the seizure of vessels carrying American flour to Delagoa Bay. John Bull, in khaki uniform, is handing a flour barrel labelled U.S. flour—to neutral port. Lower down is written on the barrel the legend. "Contraband of war, J. B." Uncle Sam, in typical costume,

> ----Bracing Refreshing invigorating! ADD A LITTLE TO YOUR BATH. STRENGTHENING EFFECT IS MACIOAL JOWDY & MITCHELL of London. England

is standing by watching John Bull's operation, and says in mildest tone, "Cousin John, you are stepping on my toes." A more spicy car-identified. Buller calls to the distressed female,

"Have courage, Lady Smith, I am near you."

distance is Ladysmith, and John cries out

"Great shade of Wellington! Hive butted into hit again." A Western artist gives us a round armoured fortress, bristling with guns bitterness manifested towards England by pointing in every direction, crawling behind European actions. Many explanations have big rocks at the base of the fortress having gone round it in opposite directions, are Buller and Warren, who, as they meet, cry to one another in chorus: "There doesn't seem to be any flank to this thing." When sympathy with the Boers began to be noisily paraded by a section of the American people, a cartoonist caught the idea by depicting Uncle Sam with a Dutch pipe, and abnormally large whiskers, bearing the words "Boer sympathy." John Bull. amazed and distressed, taps U.S. in a friendly way on the shoulder and whispers: "Say, Brother. Jonathan, seems to me you need a snave." This was a delicate hint to the American people by one who did not forget John Bull's friendliness to America at the time of the Spanish War. Boer and Briton stand penceably face to face in the fore, ground of a hattle scene bearing on their persons the manifest impress of a fierce struggle having preceded the present truce. Scattered around are dismounted cannon the evidences of terrible conflict. "A Hint for South Africa," the cartoon is entitled, and the Hindu proverb is quoted. "When two good men have fought they can afford to make peace. After the surrender of Cronje and capture of Bloemfontein there was a strong feeling in America that the time had come for mediation and peace. Both parties to the conflict, it was pointed out, had fully demonstrated their prowess and courage, and it was thought they might honourably and consistently come to terms. Not yengefully, but in the interests of permanent peace and of progressive civilization, the British people unitedly and firmly declare they cannot accept any conditions which leave a repetition of the present strife even remotely possible. Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham sounds an unequivocal note on this point. The territories of the Boer Republics, he declares, must be incorporated in Her Majesty's dominions in South Africa under the British flag. Individual libertles will be preserved. There must be an interval after the War of military administration, or to use a preferable phrase, of Crown Colony Government, but as soon as it is safe and possible. Her Majesty's Government intends to introduce the States into the great circle of self-governing Colonies. This decision will have the approval of the vest majority of the British people. But the laudable desire of Américans of an honourable termination of the present desperate conflict was suggestively pourtrayed in a cartoon in Harper's Weekly. in which John Bull and Oom Paul, seated opposite cable hatred, one can only wonder what is to be each other, jointly holding a paint-pot bearing the inscription "Peace," are busily engaged in painting each other's eyes. On the wall is a show-card, "Black Eyes Painted Here." At the bottom the artist asks. "Why not? Honours are easy now." Underlying all the American banter-and Americans hugely enjoy poking fun at John Bull and occasionally twisting the lion's tail—is a thoroughly friendly appraciation of the British position in respect to South Africa and of the national character. There is a marked contrast between American and Continental carleaturists in this respect. The > have ignobly yielded to the base motives of deprayed moral nature, will perceive their folly and regret their evil conduct. He has submitted to me the formulas of some of his preparations for examination, giving full explanation as to the medical qualities of the ingredient. I have found the Taug Kwan San or Army Medical Powder and the Tit Ta San or Falling and Bruising Medical Powder composed of Musk, Barovs, Camphor, Rhubarb, two kinds of gum, with red oxide of mercury and yellow sulphide of arsenic, animal and vegetable charcoal, which are known in western pharmacy. Besides this it contains gold leaf, tigers and dragons bones, shavings of antelope and rhinoceros horns, which I have shown him that chemical science proves to be inert, he proposes to omit from the medicine prepared for foreign use.

The medicine is to be chiefly used as a sternutatory, as is put up in small motal bottles which is can be injected into the nostrils. The small amount of oxide of mercury and
